in Autumn

A month ago, then,

these ferns sparkled vermillion

creating to me, rainforest.

and there, too stand the tree trunks uprooted.

Dinosaur legs, I look and imagine a brachiosaur mid-step, across this trail.

here, a mile from my house, imagination freezes in time.

It is autumn now, when

ferns crunch gold,

waves in an ocean hit by sun,

of felled leaves.

Dinosaurs seem now to tumble,

become extinct

as season changes.

I hope they will revive again, also.
